

In 2014, the United Republic of Tanzania made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The Government, in coordination with the ILO, conducted a National Child Labor Survey and continued to support programs on the elimination of child labor. However, children in Tanzania are engaged in child labor, including in agriculture and in the worst forms of child labor, including in mining. In addition, gaps remain in the laws regulating children's engagement in illicit activities.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in Tanzania are engaged in child labor, including in agriculture. Children also are engaged in the worst forms of child labor, including in mining. (1-7) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in Tanzania.

Tanzania

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Tanzania is a source, transit, and destination country for child trafficking.(39, 40) Trafficking of children for forced labor and commercial sexual exploitation is a problem in Tanzania, which particularly affects children trafficked internally.(37, 39, 40) Trafficking often involves family members, friends, or brokers, who promise rural families jobs or assistance with the education of their children in the urban areas of Arusha, Dar es Salaam, and Mwanza.(39) Children are trafficked for domestic work; girls are trafficked for commercial sexual exploitation, including along the Kenya-Tanzania border and in touristic areas in the country. (5, 35, 37, 38, 40) Children from Burundi and Kenya are trafficked to Tanzania for mining, domestic work, and agricultural labor.(40)

While the Primary Education Development Plan makes primary school education free, students or their parents are required to contribute money to pay for books, school feeding programs, the construction of classrooms, and the provision of teachers' houses. (5, 41) In addition, corporal punishment in schools is lawful in Tanzania and, while information is limited, data have shown that the use of corporal punishment by teachers might increase dropout rates.(17, 42-45) Furthermore, some children may lack birth registration, which makes it difficult for them to access education, health care, and other social services.(23, 29, 46) As a result of HIV/AIDS, some children must work for survival; thus, they become heads of household and are unable to attend school. (29, 47)

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

Tanzania's Constitution stipulates which laws apply across the entire United Republic, but labor laws are not included.(53, 58) Therefore, mainland Tanzania and Zanzibar have separate legislation governing child labor.(1) In addition to the legal frameworks of mainland Tanzania and Zanzibar on child labor, some districts have incorporated restrictions against child labor into their local bylaws.(11)

Because mainland Tanzania and Zanzibar have different labor laws, each has different laws for the minimum age for work and governing hazardous labor.(48, 49, 51-53, 56) Zanzibar has two different laws that provide a minimum age for work. Article 98 of the Zanzibar Children's Act prohibits children under age 15 from working, while Zanzibar Employment Act No. 11 of 2005 stipulates 17 as the minimum age for work.(50-52) As a result, the minimum age for work in Zanzibar is unclear. In contrast, the minimum age for work on mainland Tanzania is 14.(48, 49)

While the Constitution and mainland Tanzania's Employment and Labor Relations Act, the Law of the Child Act, Zanzibar Children's Act, and Zanzibar Employment Act No. 11 of 2005 prohibit forced labor, the National Defense Act and the Constitution include exceptions for forced labor through compulsory national service.(48, 50-53, 56) The Zanzibar Employment Act permits children in Zanzibar under the minimum working age to engage in domestic work, while the Children's Act does not specify whether its protections cover children engaged in domestic work. Mainland Tanzania's law does not explicitly prohibit child domestic work.(48, 51)

While Zanzibar clearly prohibits the use of children for illicit activities, mainland Tanzania does not clearly provide penalties for using children for illicit activities, including in the production and trafficking of drugs.(52)

Although Tanzania's age for voluntary military recruitment is 18, children younger than age 18 may volunteer with the consent of parents, guardians, or (if orphaned) that of the local district commission.(56, 59)

Tanzania has an education policy that provides for free education, but it is not required by law.(60) The National Education Act of 1978 requires that children enroll in primary education at age 7, with primary education lasting for 7 years; thus, the compulsory education age is 14.(57)

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

The Government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor, including its worst forms (Table 5).

Tanzania

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

Headed by a Commissioner of Police, is staffed by 23 police officers, and includes focal points responsible for trafficking.(11, 65)

Ministry of Health and Social Welfare (Zanzibar)	Enforce anti-trafficking laws, including those pertaining to child trafficking.(11)

Law enforcement agencies in Tanzania took actions to combat child labor, including its worst forms.

Labor Law Enforcement

Ministry of Labor and Employment (MOLE) regulations dictate that one or more labor officers be assigned to each region; however, research was unable to determine whether each region had a dedicated labor officer during the reporting period.(1) In 2014, the mainland MOLE released a report stating that it had employed 77 labor inspectors the previous year; however, this number is inadequate based on the size of the workforce. The number of labor inspectors for Zanzibar was unavailable.(14) No training sessions on child labor were conducted for labor inspectors, either on the mainland or in Zanzibar, in 2014.(14) The mainland MOLE did not report its level of funding for inspections, but it did report that the level of funding was inadequate. (66) Zanzibar had $8,500 for activities, including child labor inspections; the Ministry of Labor, Economic Empowerment, and Cooperatives reported that this amount of funding was inadequate.(14) On the mainland, 1,843 labor inspections were conducted during the reporting year. Zanzibar conducted 111 inspections between June and December 2014.(14) Inspections on the mainland have previously been carried out in establishments covering the agriculture, mining, domestic work, hotels, trade, industry and commerce, construction, and fishing sectors.(6) While inspectors on the mainland are able to conduct unannounced and proactive inspections, they rarely do so; inspections often are the result of specific requests. Reporting and referral mechanisms are also reported to be lacking.(14) Comprehensive information was not found on the number of violations found or penalties issued. The MOLE did not submit any cases related to child labor to the courts in 2014.(66)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2014, comprehensive information was not available on the number of criminal law enforcement investigators; the number, type, and quality of investigations; and the number of prosecutions, convictions, and penalties. During the reporting period, new police officers received training on human trafficking.(39)

IV. COORDINATION OF GOVERNMENT EFFORTS ON THE WORST FORMS OF CHILD LABOR

The Government has established mechanisms to coordinate its efforts to address child labor, including its worst forms (Table 6).

Table 6. Mechanisms to Coordinate Government Efforts on Child Labor

Coordinating Body	Role & Description
National Inter-Sectoral Coordination Committee (NISCC)	Oversee interagency child labor policy coordination, provide guidance on the overall implementation of child labor activities, and strengthen local structural capacity to address child labor.(6, 67) Chaired by the Prime Minister's Office—PMORALG; members include the Ministries of Labor, Community Development, Gender and Children, and Health and Social Welfare, as well as NGOs.(1, 6, 28)
Anti-Trafficking Secretariat and Anti-Trafficking Committee	Promote, define, and coordinate policy to prevent trafficking.(3, 37, 54)
Regional Task Force on Human Trafficking and Illegal Immigration	Maintain a list of service providers to which trafficking victims can be referred.(36, 68)

Members include the District Executive Director, Commanding District Officer, District Community Development Officer, District Education Officer, District Medical Officer, Social Welfare Officer, District Trade Officer, Legal Officer, Cooperative Officer, Planning Officer, representatives from regional affiliations, and representatives from NGOs and community-based organizations that deal with child labor.(2, 6) There are 14 District Child Labor Committees.(7)
Village Child Labor Committees	Coordinate and oversee efforts related to child labor at the village level.(6)

Multi-Sector Task Force on Violence Against Children	Implement the 3-year National Plan to Prevent and Respond to Violence Against Children and enforce the Law of the Child Act.(44, 69)

The National Inter-Sectoral Committee on Child Labor did not meet during the reporting period. This is insufficient to deal with the scope of the child labor problem in Tanzania.(14)

In 2014, the Anti-Trafficking Secretariat (ATS) and Anti-Trafficking Committee met six times to draft and approve the regulations and standard operating procedures required to implement the 2008 Anti-Trafficking in Persons Act and to draft a new Anti-Trafficking in Persons National Action Plan. The ATS received a budget allocation of approximately $45,000.(39)

However, due to constraints on resources for school construction, the Government has also encouraged communities to build and run their own schools while it provides teachers and capitalization grants once schools are established.(111)

* The impact of this program on child labor does not appear to have been studied.

‡ Program is funded by the Government of Tanzania.

As a result, statistics on children's work in general are reported in this chart, which may or may not include the worst forms of child labor.
