MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

In 2018, São Tomé and Príncipe made a minimal advancement in efforts to eliminate the worst forms of child labor. The government adopted a new Labor Law, which includes a list of hazardous work prohibited for children. In addition, the new Basic Education System Law was adopted, increasing the compulsory education age to 15 years. The government also continued to contribute resources to support centers that aim to prevent child labor by keeping children in school. However, children in São Tomé and Príncipe engage in the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation. Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. Limited financial resources hamper law enforcement agencies' capacity to enforce child labor laws. The National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor was not implemented due to lack of funding, and programs targeting children engaged in agriculture are lacking.

I. PREVALENCE AND SECTORAL DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD LABOR

Children in São Tomé and Príncipe engage in the worst forms of child labor in commercial sexual exploitation. (1) Children also perform dangerous tasks in agriculture. (2) Table 1 provides key indicators on children's work and education in São Tomé and Príncipe.

Based on a review of available information, Table 2 provides an overview of children's work by sector and activity.

II. LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR CHILD LABOR

São Tomé and Príncipe has ratified most key international conventions concerning child labor (Table 3).

‡ Child labor understood as the worst forms of child labor per se under Article 3(a)–(c) of ILO C. 182.

MINIMAL ADVANCEMENT

The government has established laws and regulations related to child labor (Table 4). However, gaps exist in São Tomé and Príncipe's legal framework to adequately protect children from the worst forms of child labor, including the minimum age for work.

In 2018, the government approved a new Labor Law, which includes a list of hazardous work prohibited for children. (1,8) In addition, the new Basic Education System Law was adopted, increasing the compulsory education age to age 15. (13)

The new Labor Code permits children younger than age 14 to work under certain circumstances that are not consistent with international labor standards. The Labor Code also permits children age 14, who have completed their compulsory education, to perform light work that is not deemed harmful to their health or development, and indicates that a special legislation will be adopted that specifies the activities and conditions in which light work may be undertaken.

III. ENFORCEMENT OF LAWS ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established institutional mechanisms for the enforcement of laws and regulations on child labor (Table 5). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs that may hinder adequate enforcement of their child labor laws.

Labor Law Enforcement

In 2018, labor law enforcement agencies in São Tomé and Príncipe took actions to combat child labor (Table 6). However, gaps exist within the operations of the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs that may hinder adequate labor law enforcement, including financial resource allocation.

Although there was a considerable increase in the number of labor inspections conducted over the previous reporting period, enforcement of child labor laws remained challenging due to a lack of resources for inspections. (14)

Children found working during inspections by labor inspectors are referred to the Department of Social Protection and Solidarity in the Ministry of Labor and Social Affairs. (1)

Criminal Law Enforcement

In 2018, criminal law enforcement agencies in São Tomé and Príncipe took actions to combat child labor (Table 7). However, gaps exist within the operations of the criminal enforcement agencies that may hinder adequate criminal law enforcement, including training for criminal investigators.

Table 7. Criminal Law Enforcement Efforts Related to Child Labor

V. GOVERNMENT POLICIES ON CHILD LABOR

The government has established policies related to child labor (Table 9). However, policy gaps exist that hinder efforts to address child labor, including funding and implementation.

Table 9. Key Policies Related to Child Labor

Policy	Description
National Action Plan for the Elimination of Child Labor	Guides the government's efforts to combat child labor. (19,20) In 2018, the government continued to support the Action Plan; however, limited financial resources hindered its implementation. (1)

VI. Social Programs to Address Child Labor

In 2018, the government funded and participated in programs that include the goal of eliminating or preventing child labor (Table 10). However, gaps exist in these social programs, including the adequacy of efforts to address the problem in all sectors.

Table 10. Key Social Programs to Address Child Labor

Decent Work Country Program (2013–2018)†	Government program in collaboration with ILO that aims to eliminate the worst forms of child labor through legislative action and strategic programs. (1,21) Active in 2018. (1)
Support Centers†	Three government-funded centers, run by NGOs, operating in areas with high concentrations of poor families, orphans, and street children. Provide household stipends to keep children in school and teach income-generating skills. (15,19,22) Active in 2018. (1)
Disadvantaged Mothers Program (Mães Carenciadas)†	Government program that provides in-kind support, including food, school materials, and uniforms on an as-needed basis. The support is distributed by social workers. (23) In 2018, at the beginning of the school year, the program distributed food, clothing, and school supplies to mothers with school-aged children. (1)

Research found no evidence of programs designed to specifically address children engaged in agriculture.
